

Interconnected Biology (Lafaver McCarron)

The purpose of this elective is to explore how human and animal biology mirror other aspects for the natural world. Exploring how repeating patterns and structure allow for a variety of functional outcomes. Example: how pressure and time and heat allow for metamorphic rock to form which has similarities to how bones within the body harden and ultimately heal from injury.